

History of the School

The school was founded in 1966 as Computer Career Institute. In April 1985, Concorde Career Colleges, Inc., acquired the school. Shortly thereafter, allied health programs were added, and the existing computer-related curriculum was phased out. In 1989, the school's name changed to Concorde Career Institute. The school relocated to the Hollywood District in 1990. In September 2004, the school moved to its present location. In December 2009, the school changed its name to Concorde Career College.